VALUES '93: Journey to the American

This book is a departure.

Look at the title: it mirrors the complexity — the ambition, even — of what this year's editorial staff thought it wanted to say about much that is in the air these noisy days. I want to tread carefully here: look how much trouble you can bring on yourself by the simple commission of a spelling error, to say nothing of slinging arrows without benefit of prior reflection.

The use of the adjective "fearless" above is probably false bravado, indeed. We're pretty feisty in this year of grace, but we're nervous, too. Maybe this season's grass-roots combativeness is the logical outcome of all that postwar cynicism, nothing but the dark survivalist humor that's left when you realize you've weathered so much upheaval and you're still more worried about where your other sock is and whether the baby will like these peaches than much of anything else.

We do still seem to return endlessly to the same eternal riddles and the same loves that puzzled us when our hearts were young and gay and the world seemed less finite, better spelled, more grammatical. And it may be that this is the only way out of the confusion that's also our constant companion (though it seems to put on a different, more extravagantly painted face with each revolution of the planet): we hunger back to what we think we know.

It's an uneasy truce at best. With it comes the certainty that at any given moment at least half the known world takes a very different, even a hostile, view; and on a particularly dismal Monday or Friday it can always seem that the best we can hope for is a reduction in the number of the sharp objects and blunt instruments we continue to resort to when the only way out seems to be to terminate the opposition in the quickest and most hurtful manner.

We don't know whether it weakens or strengthens the dialogue to have to eavesdrop on the insecurities of the statesmen — the usual gang of idiots, directed by the fearful, leading the blind. When these same guys take on our remaining aesthetic forms, as the Vice President did this year in his verbal assault on a TV show, and the fiction fights back — the distinctions begin to fuzz out. At such times, and in such bizarre contexts, it's hard to find solid ground. Too much of this political year has left an angry and bewildered electorate as gravityless as the clothes buyer, without pants and surrounded by one of those three-way mirrors.

So go with your heart, or your head, or your soul, or all three. The values you seek are certainly somewhere there, hemmed in by the reflection created in the center space. There's room for humor, of course, and maybe for deception, and you probably won't even get very lost. Travel down this road a little way with us, if you've got a few minutes — we were looking for values, and thought we would put a handful on display. They don't even seem to have changed that much, when you get right down to it.

— Davis A. March, SPECTRUM Advisor

TH '92

The subject was values, and the subjects were the members of this sorta extended family we're in.

It's funny how barriers drop and memory sharpens at graduations — it really is the one time of the year when everyone present has this odd sense of somehow belonging to everyone else present, as if we had actually all contributed, in harmony, to a common goal.

It is always a still, sultry night in the deep heart of the dog days — Who thinks about getting on with their lives on a Thursday in August, in this climate, anyway? — but everybody comes in from the heat, dressed their prettiest, for cookies and punch and pictures, and confirmation of the powerful knowledge that things of importance have been done.

Maybe what's greatest about graduation isn't even the commemoration of an accomplishment; maybe it's the meaning in the passage itself, the sense that those who are about to set sail have raised their canvas a little.

In some ways we who watch the pageant each year have the advantage — we are continually reassured that this family will never run out of star players.

The Phi Beta Lambda Business Club of Rowan-Cabarrus Community College is a student leadership organization open to all majors. It was formed for the purpose of providing students with further education and insight into areas of business outside the regular classroom experience. Phi Beta Lambda helps students develop leadership skills by operating as a business, giving members firsthand experience in business management.

Phi Beta Lambda members also have the opportunity to attend State and National Leadership Conferences, which are usually paid for through the club's business activities. These conferences offer training seminars, academic and business competition, awards, and the chance to interact with other students and business professionals.

By taking advantage of the training and experience offered in Phi Beta Lambda as well as the business activities and the Phi Beta Lambda Professional Division, Phi Beta Lambda members can get a head start on their future in the business world.

The Phi Theta Kappa honor Society, with more than 850 chapters nationally and internationally, serves only two-year colleges. RCCC's chapter was originally chartered in 1991 with 90 enrolled members. The Society supports fundraisers, such as candy sales and drawings. The money raised supports club functions like initiation ceremonies and attendance at regional and national conventions. In its first year on campus, the RCCC chapter won the "One-Star Charter" award and an Honorable Mention for "Best New Chapter."

major objective this year was to unify the two campuses. Given that the South campus is still a new addition to RCCC, SGA has been trying to meet goals by combining school activities for both campuses. The '92 SGA elected South campus' first officers.

Committees were created for such activities as the Ms. RCCC contest, Field Days and all the holiday dinners.

To keep current with new ideas about other schools and ways to improve communications with the student body, SGA members attend regular conventions and division meetings.

Well, that's that. As to whether we accomplished anything — who's to say? It was, after all, only a yearbook: a few moments' shadow puppetry to recall the months you've just consumed.

Ten or thirty years from now your groping hand will hit it in a dark box and you'll decide its lasting fate. But first you'll page through it one more time, just curious.

I don't think we were trying to change anything. Too much of the time we were too shorthanded to do as nice a job as we wanted on too much detail work that we had taken on with a too-ambitious plan for the book back in September — when it was easy to think big, before we lost able assistants to the whims and necessities of their regular lives.

My astonishment that we even finished the job this year is genuine, and I owe a profound debt of gratitude, as usual, to the usual suspects: JoAnn and Terry at Jostens; Ken Green and the Business Office; all those who decided to have their pictures taken after all; and the tiny staff who panted to the tape — Christie Martin, the late altruist; Tracy Trammell, who gutted it out; and especially the book's editor, Jennifer Burke, who is a model of commitment and deserves a salary or a diploma or a job.

Not everyone who made a contribution is pictured here, and one who is — Tracy Hoover, who worked like a horse — just evaporated one day. We don't know what happened to her. Most of this is drudgery, and the ones left are the drones.

But we leave a little mark on the year, a barely perceptible signature scrawled in the river of our passage through this place and these hours, that calls solid ground to mind in the aftermath. Late in the day, history can seem like so much unpopped popcorn — nothing but fragments of what seemed important at the time.

Already the discussion of Values begins to be a dim echo. But a battle raged here. And maybe that good war ended when what seemed to be the only two sunny days in months fell precisely on Election Day and Inauguration Day. All the rest seems to have been brilliant rain.

Or maybe it was really over — decide for yourself who won — when a 13-year-old girl whose dad had just ascended to the presidency and who couldn't help it any longer yawned in the middle of the national anthem.

ABOVE: The air filled with cheers as William Jefferson Clinton was sworn into office as the 42nd president of the United States on January 20, 1993. For the oath-taking, Clinton chose a King James Bible given to him by his grandmother, opened to the Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Galatians, 6: viii, which reads: "For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." BELOW: Bill Clinton, sitting in with the band, turns out an impressive version of "Heartbreak Hotel" as Arsenio Hall gestures approvingly on a taping of "The Arsenio Hall Show" at Paramount Studios in June. Hall said of the candidate's talent on the sax, "It's good to see a Democrat blowing something other than the election."

ABOVE: Bill Clinton and Al Gore and their wives stood before a convention hall brimming with euphoria and confidence on July 17, 1992, in New York's Madison Square Garden. In an emotional address to the convention, Clinton told delegates he accepted the nomination "in the name of all the people who do the work pay the taxes, raise the kids and play by the rules — the hard-working Americans who make up our forgotten middle class." The speech brought to a festive close a Democratic convention that adopted a moderate platform reflecting the moderate message of its baby-boomer ticket. LEFT: The Toronto Blue Jays took baseball's championship outside the United States for the first time ever, beating the Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 11 innings in the sixth game. After surviving more 9th-inning magic from the Braves, the Jays won it all — and lost their losers' label forever — when Dave Winfield's first Series extra base hit scored two runs with two out. A delirious throng flooded Toronto's city center on October 25. The glow from this win will keep Canadians warm all winter. The Braves, meanwhile, became the first team to lose consecutive World Series since the 1977-78 Los Angeles Dodgers. BELOW LEFT: In May, H. Ross Perot was a potential president. The Perot Factor was reintroduced to presidential politics 11 weeks to the day after the Texas billionaire abandoned plans to run, saying he had concluded he would not win. Many analysts viewed his reentry as a selfish attempt at redemption by a political novice who failed to realize what he was getting into months ago and now wants to heal a wounded ego. It may a while to assess Perot's impact.

NEAR RIGHT & CENTER: Escorted by more than 1,000 private boats, replicas of Christopher Columbus' ships arrived in the United States on February 15, 1992, as part of the 500th anniversary celebration of his voyage to the New World. The ships, christened in Spain in 1990, were built with the same materials carpenters used to build the original ships. FAR RIGHT: Three months after the world woke up to one of the worst famines in history, food started to reach hundreds of thousands of Somalis. Estimates of the dead range from 100,000 to half a million, while more than a million Somalis have fled their homeland permanently. Canada and elsewhere. Casualty estimates as a result of the factional fighting that has driven the nation since former leader Siad Barre's ouster range from 10,000 to 60,000. In December President George Bush ordered American troops ashore to assist the United Nations' relief effort. BELOW: William Figueroa, age 12, waited by a potato vendor's cart outside NBC studios in New York prior to his appearance on "Late Night with David Letterman." Figueroa acquired his celebrity in June 1992 when he spelled "potato" correctly during a spelling bee and Vice President Dan Quayle did not. BELOW RIGHT: Last summer's Harvard study goes far beyond projections from the World Health Organization. It envisions an explosive, disastrous spread of the disease — still without a cure or even a treatment — especially in Asia. Marking losses here in the United States, people signed panels of the AIDS Memorial Quilt in New York.

ABOVE LEFT: Poverty caused Haitians to seek asylum in the United States. In May President Bush ordered them returned to Haiti, where they could apply for asylum only through the US Consulate. The Clinton administration must now decide whether to alter existing policy. ABOVE: Hurricane Iniki, the most powerful hurricane to strike Hawaii in this century, hit Kauai in September, with winds gusting to 160 mph and twenty-foot waves. LEFT: Two powerful earthquakes rocked Southern California on June 28, killing one and injuring more than 300. The first quake registered 7.4 on the Richter scale and was felt in Denver, 600 miles away. The second quake, three hours later, was centered in the San Bernardino Mountains and measured 6.5. BELOW LEFT: Hurricane Andrew struck southern Florida on August 24, with winds gusting to 164 mph and a 12-foot tidal surge that flattened homes and wrecked an Air Force base. Fifty-five deaths were linked to the hurricane, the most expensive natural disaster in American history. BELOW: Yugoslavia was torn by demands for autonomy by Croatians who opposed Serbian domination, where ethnic diversity has been a source of strife for centuries. The population is confronted daily by the shelling, sniper fire and death of civil war.

5 Stupid network tricks — NBC's rivals jump through hoops in hopes of stealing David Letterman from the Peacock network. CBS wins, promising Dave $16 million and an 11:30 p.m. slot.

6 The Bill George and Ross Show — Millions of supposedly turned-off voters tune in to three presidential debates. One of the face-offs even trounces a baseball playoff game in the ratings.

7 To the rescue — Faces of starving Somalis on TV convince the White House — and most Americans — that U.S. troops must intervene to free food supplies.

8 Happy Homer — "Simpsons" infant Maggie stops sucking her pacifier long enough to speak first word: "Daddy." (Elizabeth Taylor provides the baby voice.)

9 Everybody knows its name — NBC airs series finale of "Cheers" — set in a Boston bar that could be decorated with Best Comedy Series Emmys — will close its doors after 11 years. The last episode will air in May.

10 Prime time marriage counseling — Hoping to defuse charges that he cheated on an affair with Gennifer Flowers, presidential contender Bill Clinton — accompanied by wife Hillary — submits to interview on post-Super Bowl "60 Minutes."
